Imagine if YOU could guide your leaders through our Behavioural Science for Leadership in Safety Program?

That's what more and more corporate organisations are doing – with great results.

Behavioural Science for Leadership in Safety

Our blended learning approach is proving successful for forward-thinking organisations, as it allows them to spread the learning outcomes more rapidly and effectively across their teams.

Our clients are typically booking between 10 and 500 people onto this IOSH Certificated program, as a way of developing and upskilling their SHE resource.

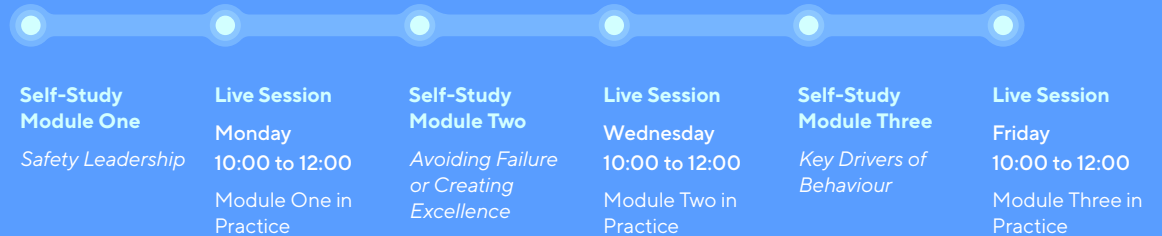

How our blended approach works

Each delegate will be given access to our online learning platform. Over the next two weeks, their learning experience will follow this path, with your internal capability delivering the live sessions to 10 – 16 delegates.

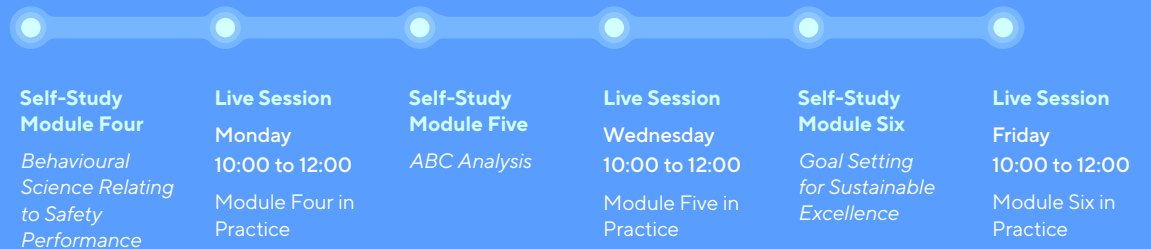

Curious? What some corporate heads are doing, is buying the online program for themselves to learn more about it. After completing it, they talk to us about booking on their team.

If you would like to deliver this program to your leadership team but would prefer to come on a Train the Trainer course with us first, we're now taking bookings for an autumn session.
